

J. Scott Colesanti '85, Board of Trustees Chairman Michael J. Campbell '65, and Gustave Scacco '84 at the Second Annual Wall Street Reception

Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs Marcia G. Welsh presents Michelle Quaglietta '07 with an award at the Undergraduate Research Conference

Curtis O. Minnis '77, Dr. Scott, and Bill Phillips '78 at the 37th Annual Adelphi University Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony

Dr. Scott, Chantal Hamlin '07, Melissa Kutner '07, and Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs Marcia G. Welsh celebrate spring's return to campus.

Members of Alpha Epsilon Phi proudly pose near their Greek letters, constructed from canned goods, during Greek Week.

Dr. Scott with Trustee and author Marjorie Weinberg-Berman M.S. '61 at the Alice Brown Early Learning Center reception

A moment of reflection for the victims of the Virginia Tech shooting

Bidding adieu to Stiles Field

Celebrating G.I.'s: Dr. Scott, Timothy Jackson '04, Board of Trustees Chairman Michael J. Campbell '65, and Garden City American Legion Commander John C. Donovan at the Flag Day celebration

Dr. Scott with Congressman Steve Israel at the President's Series on Critical Issues in April 2007, where Congressman Israel delivered the keynote address

Dermer Institute Professor Robert Mendelsohn, Alexander H. Levi Ph.D. '73, Dr. Scott, Carol G. Lindemann Ph.D. '70, and Senior Advisor for University Advancement Richard P. Dina D.S.W. '92 unveil a plaque in honor of former Dermer Institute Dean and Professor George Stricker.

Keeping Vigil: Students pay homage to the victims of the Virginia Tech tragedy.

My Adelphi

Looking back on 22 years as a college president, I can say with sincerity that these last years at Adelphi have been the most exhilarating. I "live" Adelphi 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and never tire of it. I get to know students, faculty, staff, alumni, and friends, as well as their families. Mine is not a one-dimensional role. I become acquainted with the dreams and disappointments of Adelphi people I then see over and over again.

Acting in Our Town last winter, I came to know students and faculty both on-stage and back-stage in ways I never thought possible. I watch, cheering from the stands, as our student-athletes and coaches represent our University with talent, style, and poise. Listening to students explain their research or creative works gives me insights into the depths of inquisitiveness students can display, and the dedication of faculty to student learning.

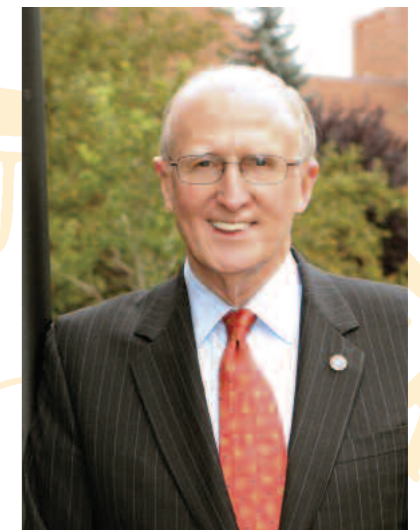

Meeting with alumni on campus, and in other parts of the country, sometimes seeing the same couples in multiple places, gives me a great sense of the special allegiance of so many to the campus where they grew personally and professionally.

"My Adelphi" is a place of lives transformed, mental discipline strengthened, ethics and values fostered, and engagement in the broader community valued — whether the students enter as freshmen or transfers, or master's or doctoral candidates. It is a place where "The Truth Shall Make Us Free" to fulfill our boldest aspirations. We hope you agree.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Scott, President

VITA SINE LITTERIS MORS EST

